Turn the page to a great career

If you are fascinated by the vast amount of information that is available, ranging from books to the Internet, and would enjoy providing this information to people who need it, then a qualification in library and information services from Central Institute is just for you.

A career in libraries offers you the chance to work in a public library, hospital library, law library, university or school library, government library, specialised company library or in industry organising information for web-based databases.

You could be a part of a large team lending books, magazines and DVDs to the general public, or work on your own in a small company library providing electronic information to specialists.

You can select work that puts you in direct contact with library users, or stay behind the scenes in technical services. Our courses will provide you with a range of skills including how to search for, organise and provide information. You will use a wide range of technologies, establish good working relationships and plan your own career development.

You will also have an opportunity to undertake supervised work placement where you will be able to apply what you have learned.
